Waste Diversion Fellow Position Description

Sustainability Fellows are ambassadors of environmentalism and sustainability to the Ursinus community. Fellows are passionate about work that makes a positive impact on the planet and our communities, as well as their own personal growth and professional development. Through this position, Fellows will develop critical thinking and leadership skills that will assist you in whatever you choose to do after your time at Ursinus.

Like all Sustainability Fellows, Waste Diversion Fellows are expected to participate in a weekly 1-credit course, taught by the Director of Sustainability, participate in Sustainable Move-Out, and Office of Sustainability events and projects throughout the semester. All Fellowships are two semesters long. The Waste Diversion Fellowship runs from late August through the end of the spring semester in May, or the length of one academic year.

What Does a Waste Diversion Fellow Do?

Waste Diversion Fellows' primary responsibility is to assist the Director of Sustainability in leading our Sustainable Move-Out in the spring. Waste Diversion Fellows spend time managing these processes, communicating with campus administrators to obtain the proper permissions, and recruit and supervise volunteers from around campus. Waste Diversion Fellows often develop programming to educate the campus on proper recycling and waste reduction. Waste and recycling management, public relations, non-profit work, education, and retail production are some of the fields that use skills that Waste Diversion Fellows hone as part of the Fellowships.
